

Lesson 2.4

Women, Peace and Security

Lesson at a Glance

Aim

To explain the duties of UN peacekeeping personnel in supporting the Women, Peace and Security (WPS) agenda of the Security Council.

Relevance

As UN peacekeeping personnel, the UN expects you to protect and promote human rights, including the human rights of women and girls.

You have a duty to protect the human rights of women and girls affected by conflict. This includes protecting women and girls from sexual violence, and helping victims.

This lesson explains why it is important to promote the UN standard of equality between men and women, boys and girls – especially after conflict. You must be a role model and promote gender equality in your conduct – in your work and private life.

Learning Outcomes

Learners will:

- Explain the different impact that conflict has on women and girls, men and boys
- Explain how women are both victims of conflict and key partners for peace in the activities of UN peacekeeping operations (UNPKOs)
- Explain “gender equality”, “gender mainstreaming”, and their importance to effective mandate implementation
- List actions to take to protect women and girls, and support gender equality

The Lesson

Starting the Lesson

Introduce the following (using the Introductory Slides):

- Lesson Topic
- Relevance
- Learning Outcomes
- Lesson Overview

Key words and ideas in this lesson may be challenging to explain and translate. These suggestions may help.

- Ask learners to think about their own and their grandparents' lives. What has changed?
- Note on a flipchart sheet the first points people make. Then ask prompt questions: How was your grandmother's life different from your mother's? Your grandfather's life from your father's?
- Some examples may seem unrelated to sex or gender – for example, access to technology, a city life instead of a rural life. Note them anyway.
- Other examples of difference may be the type of work, paid work outside the home, levels of basic literacy and education, family expectations, different approaches to marriage.
- Encourage examples from people of different cultural groups.
- Select one or two examples that show how social norms differ between groups and change over time. What is “normal” to one person is not to someone else.
- “Sex” is biologically fixed and constant, the physical reality of being male or female. “Gender” is the name given to the social construct of being male or female, not the physical reality.
- Encourage learners to think about the idea of gender by completing prompt sentences. For example: “In my culture... in my community...”
 - Men always...
 - Women never ...
 - Boys are encouraged to...
 - Girls are discouraged from...
- People from different cultures will give different responses. Answers relate to social norms and expectations for men and women. Stress that these illustrate the idea of “gender”, a core part of this lesson.

2.4.1

Differences between Men and Women – Sex or Gender?

METHOD

Brainstorm, group work, discussion

PURPOSE

To distinguish sex-based differences from gender-based differences between men and women, and to consider how peacekeeping personnel need to understand the gender stereotypes so attitudes and stereotypes do not undermine equality and human rights

TIME

Short Option: 5 minutes

- Group work: 3 minutes
- Discussion: 2 minutes

Longer Option: 10-15 minutes

- Group work: 5-7 minutes
- Discussion: 5-7 minutes

INSTRUCTIONS

- Define “sex” and “gender”
- Give examples of gender stereotypes
- Discuss how gender results in inequalities
- Should treatment be the same or different?

Learning Activity 2.4.1

Differences between Women and Men – Sex or Gender?

Instructions:

- Define “sex” and “gender”
- Give examples of gender stereotypes
- Discuss how gender results in inequalities
- Should treatment be the same or different?

Time: 5 minutes

- Group work: 3 minutes
- Discussion: 2 minutes

Slide 1

The sex of a person is:	The gender of a person:
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ▪ Biologically defined ▪ Usually determined by birth ▪ Universal 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ▪ Is socially constructed ▪ Differs and varies across cultures and time ▪ Results in different roles, responsibilities, opportunities, needs and constraints for women, men, girls and boys

Key Message: “Gender” and “sex” have different meanings.

Sex refers to biological differences between women and men. Examples are chromosomes, anatomy and hormones. “Men’s voices break at puberty, women’s do not” is a statement about the sexual differences between women and men.

A person’s sex is:

- Biologically defined
- Usually determined by birth
- Universal

Gender refers to what a society considers proper, or fitting for women and men – behavior, actions, expectations and roles. “In Ancient Egypt, men stayed at home and wove cloth. Women handled family business. Women inherited property and men did not.” These are statements about gender differences.

Gender is:

- Social meaning and value given to being a woman or a man
- Social characteristics – not biological differences – used to define a woman or a man

What gender does is:

- Define boundaries of what society expects women and men to do and be in their culture
- Shape expectations, behaviour and roles for people, including entitlements of women and men
- Set rules, norms, customs and practices through which biological differences may become social differences

Sex describes the biological differences between men and women which are universal. Societies define and shape gender in different ways so it is:

- Context specific to a particular society, culture and point in history
- Not fixed. In other words, gender is fluid and changes even over a lifetime in response to wider social changes and challenges by individuals
- Diverse. In other words, gender roles and relations vary between and within societies, influenced by a person's class, race, ethnicity, caste, sexual orientation, age, social group and life experience

Gender:

- Is socially constructed, which means it is learned and can change
- Differs within cultures and between cultures, varies over time
- Results in different roles, responsibilities, opportunities, needs and constraints for women, men, girls and boys

Instructors should emphasise difference between the words “gender” and “sex”. Many languages lack a literal translation for the word “gender”, so it is often impossible to translate the term. It is important to explain that there is a difference between the biological differences between men and women and what they learn from society as boys and girls about how each should behave. The word “gender” is used to describe such learned behaviour.

If you bridged into the lesson by asking participants to reflect on differences between lives of their grandparents and themselves, refer to the flip-chart sheet with notes. Ask participants if any of the noted points suggest stereotypes. Be ready with some examples to prompt thought. “Women are not good at math and don’t make good engineers.” “Men don’t show feelings and never cry.”

In this and other lessons, draw attention to gender stereotypes that surface. Consistently use the ideas of gender and gender equality to reinforce understanding.

Slide 2

1. Definitions

Gender equality: For women, girls, men, boys

- Equal rights, responsibilities, opportunities
- Consideration of interests, needs, priorities

Key Message: Inequalities exist between men and women in every society to varying degrees. In many societies, women are subordinate to men. Stereotypes about gender roles of women and men are at the root of discrimination against women and gender inequality.

Pause the lesson for a moment. Ask participants if they have any questions, if the basic ideas are clear. Does “gender” as a social construct make sense, distinct from biological sex? If not, take more time to build foundation understanding. If yes, ask: “So what do you think “gender equality” means?” Encourage open discussion. Note key words from points people raise, grouping related ones together. Refer to points on the flip-chart sheet as you move through the rest of the lesson, building on participants’ knowledge. If people do not give useful responses, ask them to work in table groups for five minutes and together come up with a definition of gender equality. The purpose is to get them to do some thoughtful work before giving them a definition.

Gender equality means that women and men, boys and girls have equal rights, equal responsibilities and equal opportunities. It means no discrimination because of sex or gender. Women and men, boys and girls can equally fulfil their potential in all private and public areas of society – social, economic, political, religious. Equal treatment means the interests, needs and priorities of women and men get the same consideration and weight.

Gender equality is important as:

- A human rights issue

- A precondition for and indicator of sustainable development

Equality does not mean women and men become the same. Women's and men's rights, responsibilities and opportunities do not depend on whether they are born male or female.

Gender equality is not a women's issue. It is a social issue that concerns and engages men as well as women.

Slide 3

1. Definitions
Gender perspective:	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ▪ Looks at the impact of gender on people's opportunities, social roles, interactions
Gender mainstreaming:	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ▪ Process of assessing implications of planned action for women and men ▪ Ultimate goal is gender equality
Gender balance:	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ▪ Equal representation of women and men at all levels of employment ▪ Ultimate goal is gender equality
Empowerment of women:	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ▪ Women gaining power and control in their lives

Key Message: Discriminatory laws, policies and practices prevent women and girls from enjoying their full and equal rights. Gender mainstreaming and gender balance are important because they support gender equality.

A gender perspective is a way of looking at things. It always considers the impact of gender on people's opportunities, social roles and relationships. A "gender lens" is another name for a gender perspective.

Mainstreaming a gender perspective or gender mainstreaming means to consistently consider gender and integrate gender considerations into decisions and actions. It involves assessing the implications of any planned action – legislation, policies, programmes and decisions – for women and men, girls and boys.

Gender mainstreaming leads to:

- A good understanding of the different needs, priorities and potentials of women and men, girls and boys in a country – including an understanding of how conflict has affected the lives of women compared to men, and girls compared to boys
- Better-informed decisions about possible actions (legislation, policies, programmes and decisions) to take.
 - Actions that do not make matters worse for the local population or reinforce past discrimination.
 - Actions that redress social inequalities in a host country. Examples are girls' limited access to education and lack of representation of women in decision-making processes.

The goal of mainstreaming a gender perspective is gender equality. “Mainstreaming a gender perspective” integrates concerns and experiences of women and men into all work, so:

- Women and men benefit equally
- Inequality is not perpetuated

Gender mainstreaming is one approach to achieving gender equality.

Gender mainstreaming is the responsibility of both men and women.

The definition of gender mainstreaming comes from the 1997 agreed conclusions of the Economic and Social Council (ECOSOC).

Gender balance refers to the equal representation of women and men at all levels of employment. The General Assembly has set the goal of achieving a 50-50 representation of women and men in all professional posts, especially decision-making and senior positions.

Gender balance, having equal numbers of men and women, is another approach to achieving gender equality. To achieve full equality, people must also mainstream a gender perspective through all policies, programmes and activities.

Empowerment of women describes women gaining power and control over their own lives. Some societies raise girls to be confident and aware of their rights. In other societies, empowerment is a life journey. It may involve awareness-raising, building self-confidence, expansion of choices and increased access to and control over resources.

Empowerment of women is not only about individual lives. It needs collective action to transform parts of society that reinforce gender discrimination and maintain inequality. Only women can empower themselves, but both men and women have to address institutionalized inequality and discrimination. The empowerment of women also supports gender equality.

- Discussion: 2 minutes

Importance of Attention to Women, Peace and Security (WPS)

Bridge into the next part by noting that conflict affects people in both the same way and in different ways. Ask: How are men and women affected in the same ways? What effects are specific to each group? Use the lesson text to fill in gaps and deepen understanding.

Slide 4

2. Importance of Attention to Women, Peace and Security

Impact of Conflict on Women & Girls

- Experienced differently
- More vulnerable, heightened risk of violence due to social inequalities
- Sexual violence and exploitation – rape, sexual slavery, enforced prostitution, trafficking

Key Message: Special attention is given to women and girls in conflict because they experience conflict differently. During conflict, pre-existing social inequalities magnify, making women and girls more vulnerable to certain forms of violence. These range from sexual violence and exploitation, including rape and sexual slavery, to enforced prostitution and trafficking.

Women and girls, men and boys experience conflict in the same way and in different ways.

During armed conflict civilians may die, be forcibly displaced, injured by landmines or other weapons and lose their livelihoods. Women and girls, men and boys share these experiences.

However, there are important differences in experiences of women and girls, men and boys. Women and girls are highly disadvantaged and at heightened risk of violence in times of conflict.

During the Conflict

- Women must work harder to get food, fuel and water; they may be at risk doing these daily tasks
- Men find it harder to support their families
- Men may take up arms
- Women may have more people to take care of, including injured people
- Combatants may abduct and rape women and girls, use them as sexual slaves and bush wives
- Combatants may forcefully conscript boys into combat and use them as sexual slaves

After the Conflict

- Men may be unable to work or provide for others
- Women struggle with breaks in food and water supplies
- Men may become disillusioned, frustrated and resort to violence; women may too
- Family and community may reject abducted women and girls; finding partners may be difficult, especially if children resulted from rape
- Women may resort to prostitution to survive
- Post-conflict programs for re-entry to society may target only male combatants, ignoring women and girls

Young men and boys typically have the role of “protectors” of their communities. Their high risks are:

- Militia groups and armies recruiting them
- Injury and death through combat

Women and girls typically have the role of “providers” of everyday household needs, which can take them to remote locations in search of water and firewood. As a result, the main threat to the security of women and girls in conflict zones may be rape and sexual assault when carrying out household tasks rather than injury and death through combat.

Women and girls may also join armed groups out of poverty, by force or willingly. Usually, they provide support services to combatants such as domestic services, but sometimes combatants use them as sexual slaves.

During conflict, women and girls must typically take on more responsibilities to meet daily household subsistence needs. Necessary resources and social support may not be available. Women and children are more vulnerable economically. This places them at greater risk of exploitation by organized criminal groups active in prostitution rackets or drugs and human trafficking.

The UN has documented use of sexual violence against women and girls as a strategy and tactic of war. Sexual violence is also directed against men and boys. These violent acts are symbolic as well as real. They have political significance and may be endorsed by militia or army leadership.

Slide 5

Key Partners in Peace

- Women and girls not just victims in conflict
- Actors in conflict and peace
- Critical role in peace and security – sources of authority, information, change

Key Message: Special attention is given to women and girls as key partners for conflict resolution and promoting peace. Women and girls are not only victims in armed conflict. They are also active agents and participants in conflict and peace.

Women and girls have a critical role in peace and security, not always recognized or tapped. Women and girls are key partners as:

- Sources of authority
- Sources of information
- Agents of positive change

Women may have more informal decision-making powers in a community than one expects. When men go to war, women take on the responsibilities of the absent men. As heads of the family or households, they provide for their families and make all family decisions.

Women also have access to valuable information about:

- How the community works
- Fighting or tensions in the community
- Arms caches and planned violence

- Potential threats

Female combatants may have valuable information about fighting forces.

In a number of countries, the moral authority of women as mothers, wives and daughters has been drawn upon to put an end to conflict. An example is the Women of Liberia Mass Action for Peace – a peace movement started by women in Liberia to end the civil war.

However, formal peace processes continue to ignore women. Men dominate. Women are more prominent in informal peace activities, for example, peace marches and advocacy campaigns.

Key Message: Special attention is given to women and girls because gender equality is an important goal. It is an issue of human rights and social justice. Promoting greater gender equality can also benefit peace and security.

Gender equality benefits society as a whole.

Peace and security can only be achieved and sustained if all members of a society have equal access to:

- Opportunities
- Protection
- Resources and services
- Decision-making
- All basic rights

The theme of human rights is carried throughout the CPTM. Use this point to link human rights and the goal of lasting peace and security. Links between violent conflict and denial or violation/abuse of a group's human rights are not always clear, but they are strong. Helping learners see and understand this link will assist them in connecting new learning about human rights to their peacekeeping role.

Peace and security efforts that neglect women do not achieve goals and can have negative impacts.

Wrongs done to women in conflict often are not considered as serious as violations and abuses against men. Ignoring human rights violations and abuses committed against women may:

- Slow national reconciliation and healing
- Negatively affect a peace process

Both men and women contribute to ending discrimination: challenging attitudes, changing behaviours and transforming social roles.

UN peacekeeping operations (UNPKOs) also contribute by:

- Providing women with equal opportunities to express their needs and priorities
- Increasing women's full participation in peace processes and their implementation

Legal Framework

Slide 7

3. Legal Framework

- International Law
- Convention on the Elimination of all Forms of Discrimination Against Women (CEDAW, 1979)
- Agreed Conclusions of ECOSOC Coordination Segment on Gender Mainstreaming (1997)
- Beijing Platform for Action (1995)
- Windhoek Declaration and Namibia Plan of Action (2000)

7

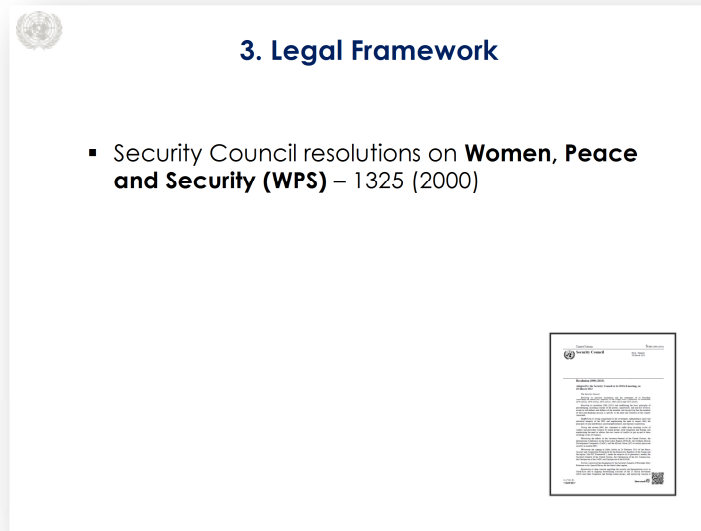

Key Message: The legal framework obligates UNPKOs to promote gender equality.

Gender equality is a goal to which governments and international organizations have committed themselves. The UN Charter and other international instruments enshrine this goal.

International human rights norms and standards on gender equality are in the:

- Universal Declaration of Human Rights, (UDHR, 1948)
- International Covenant for Civil and Political Rights (ICCPR, 1966)
- International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights (ICESCR, 1966)
- Convention on the Elimination of all Forms of Discrimination Against Women (CEDAW, 1979)
- Agreed Conclusions of ECOSOC Coordination Segment on Gender Mainstreaming (1997)
- Beijing Platform for Action (1995)
- Windhoek Declaration and Namibia Plan of Action (2000)

Slide 8

Key Message: In 2000, Security Council resolution 1325 was the groundbreaking resolution on Women Peace and Security (WPS). The Security Council has adopted additional resolutions to guide the international community's commitments to women's rights in conflicts. These resolutions reflect the disproportionate and unique impact of armed conflict on women and girls.

Consider making a wall graphic or visual of the timeline for the WPS agenda, with key dates. Use it to show the Security Council's increased attention. Conflict-related sexual violence (CRSV) is part of WPS and protection of civilians (POC).

Together, the resolutions are the Security Council's "Women Peace and Security (WPS) agenda". The WPS agenda emphasizes:

- Women's empowerment
- Women's participation
- Women's protection
- Gender equality

The Security Council resolutions on WPS include:

- SCR 1325 (2000): Stresses the importance of women's equal and full participation as active agents in preventing and resolving conflicts, peacebuilding and peacekeeping.
- SCR 1820 (2008): Reinforces resolution 1325 by directly linking sexual violence as a tactic of war with women peace and security issues.

- SCR 1888 (2009): Calls for the UN to deploy Women Protection Advisers (WPAs); sets up the Special Representative of the Secretary-General on Sexual Violence in Conflict (SRSG-SVC). A follow up to Resolution 1820.
- SCR 1889 (2009): Calls for the development of indicators to monitor and measure progress on Resolution 1325.
- SCR 1960 (2010): Focuses on Monitoring, Analysis and Reporting Arrangements (MARA) on conflict-related sexual violence(CRSV).
- SCR 2106 (2013): Focuses on protection; builds on and deepens the WPS agenda on CRSV.
- SCR 2122 (2013): Focuses on participation; calls for further strengthening of women's engagement at all levels of decision-making.
- SCR 2242 (2015): Focuses on using gender analysis at all stages of the mission from start-up to draw-down, and increased accountability by senior mission leader on gender equality.

These SCRs on WPS guide UNPKOs in advancing gender equality in post-conflict societies.

UN Partners Leading in WPS

Slide 9

Key Message: All UN entities are to implement the WPS agenda in their work. The United Nations Entity for Gender Equality and the Empowerment of Women (UN Women) leads on gender equality and women's empowerment.

WPS resolutions and mandates have wide scope. Different entities lead on different parts:

- UN Women
- Office of the Special Representative of the Secretary-General on Sexual Violence in Conflict (SRSG-SVC)
- United Nations Development Programme (UNDP)
- United Nations Population Fund (UNFPA)
- Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights (OHCHR)

National and external partners also lead in specific areas. The UNPKO and its UN partners advocate for gender equality, women's rights, women's empowerment and the WPS agenda, along with:

- Governments
- National defence and police institutions
- Non-governmental and community based organizations
- Women's groups
- Local communities
- Faith based associations
- Member States

DPKO-DFS Policy on Gender Equality

Slide 10

 5. DPKO-DFS Policy on Gender Equality

- Principles for gender equality:
 - Inclusiveness
 - Non-discrimination
 - Gender balance
 - Efficiency
- Mainstream a gender perspective in all plans, policies, activities, analysis, reports

Key Message The DPKO-DFS Policy on Gender Equality in UN Peacekeeping Operations (2010) guides peacekeeping personnel. All UN peacekeeping work and personnel must promote, respect and protect gender equality. The policy requires UNPKOs to integrate or mainstream gender perspectives. SCR 1325 and other WPS resolutions apply.

The DPKO and DFS policy states:

- Women and men are equal
- All peacekeeping personnel must promote equality between men and women

The following principles underlie DPKO-DFS work for gender equality:

- Inclusiveness: Peacekeeping personnel are to consult equally with women and men in post-conflict countries on all decisions that affect them. The goal is to consider perspectives of all community members and integrate these into policies.
- Non-discrimination: Peacekeeping personnel are to uphold equal rights of women and girls in policies and decisions and protect women from sexual and gender-based violence (SGBV) and harmful traditional practices.
- Gender balance: Staffing profiles at Headquarters and in missions are to reflect commitments to equal representation of men and women at all post levels.
- Efficiency: To build and sustain peace, efforts have to harness all human resources capacity in post-conflict societies - women, men, boys and girls.

The policy applies to all UN peacekeeping personnel:

- Military, police and civilian
- In the field and at Headquarters
- In official duties and personal life

The policy requires a gender perspective to be mainstreamed in all plans, policies, activities, analyses and reports.

Mainstreaming a gender perspective involves five (5) measures:

1. Gender analysis. Gain an understanding of the social position and relationships between men and women. This includes:
 - Access to resources
 - Activities and work – constraints women and men face in areas of work and fields of expertise

Gender analysis always uses data broken down or "disaggregated" by sex and age. This is important for peacekeeping personnel to make a comparison. All reports need to present this same information.

The information on gender analysis helps further clarify the difference between the two key ideas, sex and gender. Sex is biological, gender is social. The relationship between them is as important as clear definitions. Gender analysis uses these two ideas, sex and gender, to better support gender equality. All information needs to be analysed separately for men, boys, women and girls. Comparisons are possible.

2. Programme planning and design. Ensure consultation with gender experts:
 - Gender unit of the UN peacekeeping mission
 - Specialist UN entities working on gender issues, for example UN Women, UN Children's Fund (UNICEF), UNFPA
 - National and local women's organizations
3. Monitoring. Regularly review plans and progress on gender mainstreaming, in consultation with gender experts.
4. Implementation. Integrate gender considerations into all activities, including in training and reporting.
5. Coordination and networking. Coordinate on gender issues with UN entities, external and national partners, including women's organizations.

DPKO-DFS also has a strategy to support gender mainstreaming in peacekeeping. The DPKO-DFS Gender Forward Looking Strategy 2014-2018:

- Sets objectives for gender mainstreaming in peacekeeping
- Stresses its importance
- Outlines a strategic direction
- Gives tools to better support and protect women and girls where missions are deployed

Instructors should note that the new DPKO-DFS Policy on Gender Equality in UN Peacekeeping Operations due in 2017 replaces the 2010 policy.

Gender Equality in UN Peacekeeping

Slide 11

 6. Gender Equality in UN Peacekeeping

- Increase number of women
- Address inequality in policy and practice
- Advise on women-specific impacts of mission actions
- Work with national partners to address women's and girls' needs, rights
- Work directly with women and girls – voices heard, capacities tapped into

WOMEN IN PEACEKEEPING:
THE POWER TO EMPOWER
International Day of United Nations Peacekeepers - 29 May 2018

Key Message: The UN expects peacekeeping personnel to make progress towards gender equality. Ending discrimination against women and girls is everyone's job.

Gender equality in peacekeeping missions means:

- Getting more women in key mission components to address under-representation and lead by example
- Addressing policy and practice that may result in or reinforce inequality
- Advising the SRSG/HOM and component heads on the women-specific impacts and implications of actions by the mission or partners
- Working with national partners to strengthen capacity to effectively address women's and girls' needs and rights, as well as men's and boys'
- Working directly with women and girls to ensure their voices are heard and capacities tapped in wider efforts for stabilization, peace and development

Roles and Responsibilities

Slide 12

Key Message: The Gender Adviser of the mission leads and coordinates on gender issues.

Gender Advisers lead in key areas:

- Advise mission leadership, military, police and civilian components on gender issues
- Guide integration of gender perspectives into work of all components - policies, planning instruments, actions and reports
- Contribute to building capacity of national and local partners (civil society, government), working with mission components
- Coordinate with UN partners on gender mainstreaming
- Develop and oversee the delivery of training on gender mainstreaming and SGBV for all peacekeeping personnel
- Coordinate with WPAs

The Gender unit supports gender mainstreaming in mission priority areas, for example:

- Political processes and governance structures
- Human rights protection and promotion
- Disarmament, demobilization and reintegration (DDR)
- Security sector reform (SSR)
- Mine action
- Legal, judicial and corrections reforms
- Prevention, protection and response to SGBV
- POC and CRSV

Slide 13

Key Message: Others contribute to integrating gender perspectives into all work components.

They are a resource for mission leadership to mainstream gender into plans and work, supporting:

- HOM
- Force Commanders
- Police Commissioners
- Heads of sections
- All peacekeeping personnel

Gender Focal Points in traditional peacekeeping operations:

- Are appointed in peacekeeping missions that do not have a Gender unit
- Advise mission leadership, military, police and civilian components on gender issues
- Ensure all mission components effectively integrate gender equality in their work
- Build capacity of all in the mission to address gender issues

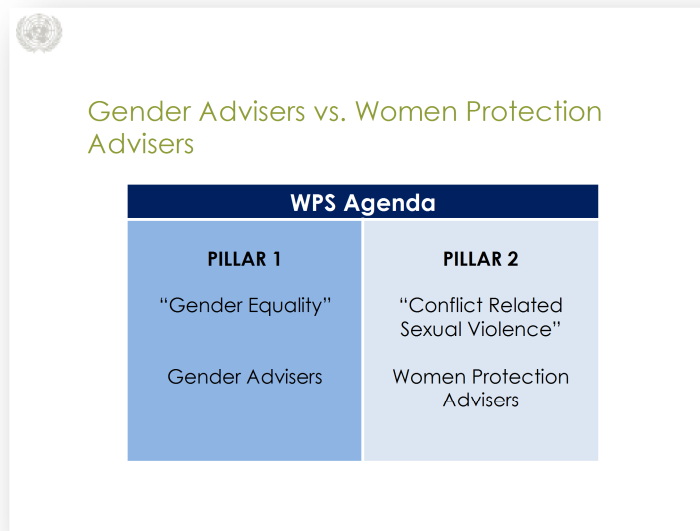

Women Protection Advisers (WPAs): WPAs advise mission leadership, military, police and civilian components on addressing CRSV.

Focal Points for Women (FPW):

- Serve as reference person on gender balance
- Support increasing numbers of female civilian staff in DPKO and DFS, at Headquarters and in the field
- Help female civilian staff develop and move up in their careers

Gender Focal Points and WPAs are technical posts. The FPW is an assignment on top of one's regular job.

Slide 14

Key Message: The aim of the WPS agenda in UN peacekeeping is to guarantee that participation and protection of women and girls are priorities in all peacekeeping settings. Two pillars underpin the WPS agenda in UN peacekeeping:

- Gender equality – the focus for Gender Advisers
- CRSV – the focus for WPAs

Gender Advisers and WPAs work together to help missions implement the WPS agenda.

WPS Pillar 1: Gender Equality

Gender Advisers advance the goals of gender equality through a holistic approach to WPS. They:

- Make sure all mission components consider gender issues and the root causes of gender inequality

- Concentrate on women's full participation – for example, women can be partners in their own protection

WPS Pillar 2: CRSV

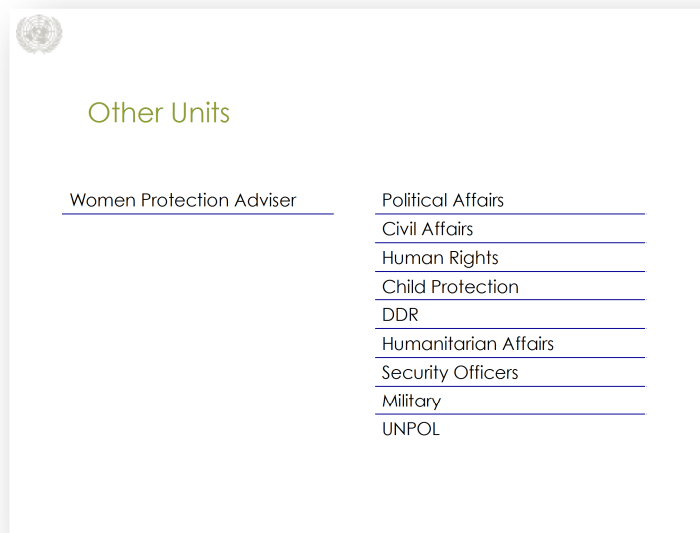

WPAs focus on protecting women from and preventing sexual violence. They:

- Give dedicated capacity in missions carrying out a CRSV mandate
- Lead on this theme within Gender and Human Rights units

Gender Advisers and WPAs carry out work on the WPS agenda through:

- Participation of women in all post-conflict processes
- Protection of women and girls from sexual violence
- Robust training, building capacity of peacekeeping personnel and partners

Slide 15

Key Message: All components in a mission contribute to gender equality in daily tasks.

A cross-section of units contribute to gender equality, protection and participation of women and girls.

Their work involves:

- Security and political assessments of local communities
- Rebuilding local institutions

As part of mainstreaming gender and the WPS agenda, these units must:

- Recognize women and girls as key partners,
- Ensure their equal participation
- Engage with them as important sources of authority, information and support for positive change

All UN peacekeeping personnel have a duty to promote gender equality in their work.

What Individual Peacekeeping Personnel Can Do

Slide 16

8. What Individual Peacekeeping Personnel Can Do

- Promote equality
- Observe carefully
- Investigate properly
- Report accurately

Key Message: All UN peacekeeping personnel have a duty to promote, protect and respect human rights. Through their official roles and personal conduct, all peacekeeping personnel contribute to ending discrimination against women and gender inequality.

Every society creates certain expectations about what women and men can and should do, say or how they can act. As UN peacekeeping personnel, your job is to uphold what is fair and just, according to UN standards. As UN personnel, you must promote UN standards of equality between men and women.

Peacekeeping personnel are ambassadors. They represent the UN and their country.

To eliminate discrimination against women and gender inequality, all peacekeeping personnel must take action.

Individual peacekeeping personnel can:

- Be gender sensitive. In other words, use a “gender lens” or take on a “gender perspective” which looks at the impact of gender on people’s opportunities, social roles and relationships. Make sure you mainstream a gender perspective into all plans, policies, activities, analysis and reports.
- Consult widely:
 - Consult women and men
 - Consult girls and boys
 - Consult elderly people
 - Gather perspectives on the status of the community, needs, threats, impact of the conflict and highest priorities of each group
 - Ensure no group is left out, especially the marginalized as part of community scans to help understand the area
- Promote equality. Make sure that as peacekeeping personnel any help you give, any service you provide, any jobs or contracts you create benefit women and men equally. Support women’s empowerment, ensuring their equal representation and full participation in comparison with men.
- Observe carefully. On patrol, or during any task, observe different activities of men and women. When and where do they carry them out? Where do women go to get food, fuel and water? Are they safe? Are special measures needed to ensure that women are and feel as safe as men? Consider security issues for children on the way to school and the different risks for boys and girls.
- Investigate properly. Talk to women and men for a full picture. Do not assume that men can give you the whole picture, or know what women think. Local women may be more comfortable talking to female peacekeeping personnel or talking in a group. Talk to women and men separately. Have male-female teams interview and be in contact with local women, or where culturally challenging, have female peacekeeping personnel lead to encourage women’s participation and trust. Make sure interpreters and translators understand the importance of accuracy and equal weight to inputs from women and men.
- Report accurately. Make sure your reports reflect the realities for both women and men. Use a checklist of issues to cover in reports. Include relevant facts about the situations of women and men. Disaggregate data in reports, giving clear evidence of differences between women’s and men’s views and inputs.
- Behave respectfully. Your behavior can have far reaching impact. Support dignity and equality between women and men. Be aware of the power imbalance between peacekeeping personnel and the host population. You have money, mobility and access to food, water and other goods. The UN does not tolerate exploitation of local people. Women and girls are more vulnerable to sexual exploitation and abuse. The UN has a strict “zero tolerance” policy prohibiting sexual exploitation and abuse.

Summary

Conflict has a different impact on women and girls, men and boys

- Women and girls, men and boys experience conflict in the same way and in different ways.
- During conflict, pre-existing social inequalities magnify, making women and girls more vulnerable to certain forms of violence. These range from sexual violence and exploitation, including rape and sexual slavery, to enforced prostitution and trafficking.
- Young men and boys typically have the role of “protectors” of their communities. Their high risks are a) militia groups and armies recruiting them, and b) injury and death through combat.
- Women and girls typically have the role of providers of everyday household needs and are vulnerable to rape and sexual assault when carrying out household tasks, such as the search of water and firewood in remote locations. Women and girls may also join armed groups, usually as sexual slaves. During conflict, women and girls typically take on more responsibilities to meet daily household subsistence needs and are at greater risk of exploitation in prostitution or drugs and human trafficking.

Women and girls are not only victims; they are active in conflict and peace, and key partners for peacekeeping and peacebuilding

- Women and girls are highly disadvantaged and at heightened risk of violence in times of conflict.
- Women and girls are not only victims in armed conflict; they are also active agents and participants in conflict. In many conflict and post-conflict situations they have been instrumental in promoting peace.
- Women and girls have a critical role in peace and security, not always recognized or tapped. Women and girls are key partners as:
 - Sources of authority
 - Sources of information
 - Agents of positive change
- Women may have more informal decision-making powers in a community than expected and authority as heads of the family or households when men go to war. Women also have access to valuable information about the community and the fighting or tensions that take place. In a number of countries, the moral authority of women as mothers, wives and daughters has been drawn upon to put an end to conflict. Women take part in peace marches and advocacy campaigns.

“Gender equality” refers to equal rights, responsibilities and opportunities for both sexes

- Gender equality means that women and men, boys and girls have equal rights, equal responsibilities and equal opportunities. It means no discrimination because of sex or gender. Women and men, boys and girls can equally fulfil their potential in all private and public areas of society – social, economic, political, religious. Equal treatment means the interests, needs and priorities of women and men get the same consideration and weight.
- Gender equality is important as:
 - A human rights issue
 - A precondition for and indicator of sustainable development
- Mainstreaming a gender perspective or gender mainstreaming means to consistently consider gender and integrate gender considerations into decisions and actions. It involves assessing the implications of any planned action – legislation, policies, programmes and decisions – for women and men, girls and boys.
- Gender mainstreaming is important because it supports gender equality. “Mainstreaming a gender perspective” integrates the concerns and experiences of women and men into all work, so:
 - Women and men benefit equally
 - Inequality is not perpetuated

You must take action – be gender sensitive, promote equality, coordinate, intervene

- To help protect women and support gender equality in daily work, individual peacekeeping personnel can:
 - Be gender sensitive
 - Consult widely
 - Promote equality
 - Observe carefully
 - Investigate properly
 - Report accurately
 - Behave respectfully

Evaluation

Notes on Use: An example of learning evaluation questions for this lesson may be found below.

There are different types of learning evaluation questions for the instructor to choose from (See Options). Types of learning evaluation questions are:

- 1) Narrative
- 2) Fill in the blank/sentence completion
- 3) True-False

Combine in different ways for pre-assessment and post-assessment. Each evaluation type covers different content. No sub-set covers all learning outcomes. Make sure you include learning evaluation questions for each learning outcome when you combine them.

Three main uses of evaluation questions are: a) informally ask the whole group, b) semi-formally assign to small groups or c) formally give to individuals for written responses.

Commonly Asked Questions and Key Words

Key Words or phrases for this lesson:

Key Word or Phrase	Definition
Gender roles	Gender roles are the activities that a household or community expects women and men to do. Are women active in religious life, or barred from it? Are men active in domestic work, or live separately from the household? Human culture and nature are wonderfully diverse. Three main kinds of work are necessary for groups of people to survive and thrive: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • productive work; • reproductive work; • community work. Productive work: e.g. household food production, production of cash crops. Women and men both play a strong role. Women may lead on household food production, men on production of cash crops. Women may lead on both. Reproductive work: e.g. domestic tasks. Women have a lead role, often limiting time available for engagement in paid productive work. Men have a lesser role. Community work: Men may spend more time in community-level political activities than women. Women may have a background or support role. Society and culture set expectations for women's and men's engagement and behaviour in each area. Gender influences who does what work. Programmes of assistance and support need to consider gender roles. Gender roles and relations vary across social class, economic status, political context and culture. Race, age, and ethnicity affect them. So do individuals' desires and aspirations. Sometimes social expectations about gender roles become stereotypes, fixed beliefs about a group of people.

	Many influences shape gender roles. These include family, school, peers, community, wider culture, religion, media and advertising. In all cultures and societies, throughout history, individuals have challenged and changed gender roles.
Sex	Sex refers to biological differences between women and men. Examples are chromosomes, anatomy, and hormones. “Men's voices break at puberty, women's do not” is a statement about the sexual differences between women and men. A person's sex is: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Biologically defined; • Determined by birth; • Universal.
Gender	Gender refers to what a society considers proper or fitting for women and men – behavior, actions, expectations and roles. “In Ancient Egypt, men stayed at home and wove cloth. Women handled family business. Women inherited property and men did not.” These are statements about gender differences. Gender is: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Social meaning and value given to being a woman or a man • Social characteristics – not biological differences – used to define a woman or a man. Gender: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Is socially constructed, which means it is learned, and can change; • Differs within cultures and between cultures, varies over time; • Results in different roles, responsibilities, opportunities, needs and constraints for women, men, girls and boys.

Gender equality	Gender equality means that women and men, boys and girls have equal rights, equal responsibilities, and equal opportunities. It means no discrimination because of sex or gender. Women and men, boys and girls can equally fulfil their potential in all private and public areas of society – social, economic, political, religious. Equal treatment means the interests, needs and priorities of women and men get the same consideration and weight.
Gender perspective	A gender perspective is a way of looking at things. It always considers the impact of gender on people's opportunities, social roles and relationships. A "gender lens" is another name for a gender perspective.
Gender mainstreaming	Gender mainstreaming consistently considers gender, and integrates gender considerations into decisions and actions. It assesses implications for women and men of any planned action: legislation, policies, programmes, and decisions. (The 1997 agreed conclusions of the Economic and Social Council ECOSOC). The approach is also called mainstreaming a gender perspective. "Mainstreaming a gender perspective" integrates concerns and experiences of women and men into all work, so: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> a) women and men benefit equally and b) inequality is not perpetuated.
Gender balance	Gender balance refers to the equal representation of women and men at all levels of employment. The General Assembly has set the goal of achieving a 50-50 representation of women and men in all professional posts, especially decision-making and senior positions.
Empowerment of women	Empowerment of women describes women gaining power and control over their own lives. Some societies raise girls to be confident and aware of their rights. In other societies, empowerment is a life journey. It may involve awareness-raising, building self-confidence, expansion of choices, increased access to and control over resources.
Women Protection Advisers (WPAs)	Women Protection Advisers (WPAs): <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Advise on integrating CRSV: mission leadership, military, police and civilian components;

	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Put in place and manage MARA, monitoring, analysis and reporting arrangement on CRSV; • Promote early warning and accountability of CRSV perpetrators, working closely with Human Rights components; • Dialogue to get commitments on CRSV: with parties to a conflict, addressing CRSV prevention and accountability; • Coordinate response to cases of CRSV and promote accountability of perpetrators of CRSV; • Train all peacekeepers on CRSV.
Gender analysis	Gender analysis involves gaining an understanding of the social position and relationships between men and women. This includes an understanding of: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • access to resources • activities and work- constraints each face in areas of work and fields of expertise Gender analysis relies on data broken down or disaggregated by sex and age.

Commonly asked questions from participants:

Possible Questions	Possible Responses
What influences the differences in how males and females experience violent conflict?	a) Subordinate position of women and girls in many areas of life; b) Gender roles. Inequalities exist between men and women, in every society, to varying degrees. In many societies, women are subordinate to men. Discriminatory laws, policies and practices prevent women and girls from enjoying their full and equal rights. Stereotypes about gender roles of women and men are at the root of discrimination against women and gender inequality.
Why was Security Council resolution 1325 (2000) ground-breaking?	In 2000, Security Council resolution (SCR) 1325 was the ground-breaking resolution on Women Peace and Security (WPS). SCR 1325 was the first resolution and also broke new ground in: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Urging member states and all actors to increase women's equal participation and incorporate a gender perspective in peace and security efforts; • Recommending specialized training for peacekeepers on protection, special needs and human rights of women and children; • Urging greater representation of women at all levels in peacekeeping operations; • Stating the need to consolidate data on the impact of armed conflict on women and girls; • Asking the Secretary-General to include in reports to the Security Council progress on gender mainstreaming in peacekeeping missions. The Security Council has adopted additional resolutions on Women Peace and Security: 1820 (2008), 1888 (2009), 1889 (2009), 1960 (2010), 2106 (2013), 2122 (2013), and 2242 (2015). Through the WPS agenda, the international community calls for: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1) better protection for women from human rights violations; 2) access to justice for women; 3) access to services and support to eliminate discrimination. It also recognizes that women's participation is vital to achieving and sustaining peace.

Does gender equality mean that women and men are the same?	Gender equality means equal rights, responsibilities and opportunities of women and men, girls and boys. Gender equality does not mean that women and men will become the same. Gender equality means that women and men have the same opportunities – their rights, roles and responsibilities do not depend on whether they were born male or female.
Is gender mainstreaming the same as gender balance?	Gender mainstreaming means ensuring that – in all areas of our work and all planned actions including laws, policies and programmes – we take into account the different experiences, concerns, needs, and priorities of women, men, girls and boys. Women, men, girls and boys should benefit equally from all development. It is one way to achieve gender equality. Gender balance refers to the equal representation of women and men at all levels of employment. This means that in our recruitment we must have equal number of women and men employees – in other words, 50-50 where possible. It is another way to achieve gender equality.
Can men be gender experts?	Yes, men can also be gender experts, and are being encouraged to work in UN peacekeeping operations as gender officers. A few are already working in this field, but more are needed.

Module 2: Mandated Tasks of United Nations Peacekeeping Operations

Lesson 2.4

Women, Peace and Security

Relevance

Peacekeeping personnel:

- Protect and promote women's human rights
- Protect women and girls from sexual violence
- Role model for gender equality

Learning Outcomes

Learners will:

- Explain different impact of conflict on women and girls, men and boys
- Explain how women are victims of conflict and key partners for peace
- Explain “gender equality”, “gender mainstreaming” and importance
- List actions to take to protect women and support gender equality

2.4.1

Differences between Women and Men –
Sex or Gender?

Instructions:

- Define “sex” and “gender”
- Give examples of gender stereotypes
- Discuss how gender results in inequalities
- Should treatment be the same or different?

Time: 5 minutes

- Group work: 3 minutes
- Discussion: 2 minutes

1. Definitions

The sex of a person is:	The gender of a person:
<ul style="list-style-type: none">▪ Biologically defined▪ Usually determined by birth▪ Universal	<ul style="list-style-type: none">▪ Is socially constructed▪ Differs and varies across cultures and time▪ Results in different roles, responsibilities, opportunities, needs and constraints for women, men, girls and boys

1. Definitions

Gender equality:

For women, girls, men, boys

- Equal rights, responsibilities, opportunities
- Consideration of interests, needs, priorities

1. Definitions

Gender perspective:

- Looks at the impact of gender on people's opportunities, social roles, interactions

Gender mainstreaming:

- Process of assessing implications of planned action for women and men
- Ultimate goal is gender equality

Gender balance:

- Equal representation of women and men at all levels of employment
- Ultimate goal is gender equality

Empowerment of women:

- Women gaining power and control in their lives

Impact of Conflict on Women and Girls

Instructions:

- Consider the testimonies of civilians
- List examples of how women and girls, men and boys experience conflict differently
- Discuss the role of gender stereotypes

Time: 5 minutes

- Group work: 3 minutes
- Discussion: 2 minutes

2. Importance of Attention to Women, Peace and Security

Impact of Conflict on Women & Girls

- Experienced differently
- More vulnerable, heightened risk of violence due to social inequalities
- Sexual violence and exploitation – rape, sexual slavery, enforced prostitution, trafficking

Key Partners in Peace

- Women and girls not just victims in conflict
- Actors in conflict and peace
- Critical role in peace and security – sources of authority, information, change

Achieving Gender Equality

- Important goal in itself – an issue of human rights and social justice

5. DPKO-DFS Policy on Gender Equality

- Principles for gender equality:
 - Inclusiveness
 - Non-discrimination
 - Gender balance
 - Efficiency
- Mainstream a gender perspective in all plans, policies, activities, analysis, reports

6. Gender Equality in UN Peacekeeping

- Increase number of women
- Address inequality in policy and practice
- Advise on women-specific impacts of mission actions
- Work with national partners to address women's and girls' needs, rights
- Work directly with women and girls – voices heard, capacities tapped into

7. Roles & Responsibilities

Gender Adviser

- Advise mission leadership and components
- Mainstream gender perspectives
- Capacity building of national and local partners
- Coordination with UN partners
- Develop and oversee the delivery of training on gender mainstreaming and SGBV
- Coordination with Women Protection Advisers

8. What Individual Peacekeeping Personnel Can Do

- Promote equality
- Observe carefully
- Investigate properly
- Report accurately

Gender Mainstreaming

Instructions:

- Consider the scenarios
- You must eliminate the discrimination and inequality experienced by women and girls
- How would you integrate their concerns and experiences in the work carried out?

Time: 10 minutes

- Brainstorming: 3 minutes
- Discussion: 5-7 minutes

Summary of Key Messages

- Conflict has a different impact on women and girls, men and boys
- Women and girls – not just victims, active in conflict and peace, key partners for peacekeeping and peacebuilding
- “Gender equality” – equal rights, responsibilities, opportunities
- Take action – be gender sensitive, promote equality, coordinate, intervene

Learning Activities

Detailed instructions for each learning activity may be found below. Here is an overview of learning activities for the instructor to choose from:

Number	Name	Methods	Time
2.4.1	Differences Between Women and Men – Sex or Gender?	Brainstorm, group work, discussion	5-15 minutes
2.4.2	Impact of Conflict on Women and Girls	Brainstorm, group discussion	5-15 minutes
2.4.3	Film: Women in Peacekeeping	Film, discussion	15 minutes
2.4.4	Gender Mainstreaming	Brainstorm, discussion	10 minutes
2.4.5	Shaping Gender Roles	Brainstorm in table groups, share in full group	15 minutes
2.4.6	Gender and Power Structures – Questions for Peacekeeping Personnel	Discussion, small and large group	25 minutes
2.4.7	Equal Treatment – Unequal Results	Use of a fable (story), discussion	15 minutes

Learning Activity

2.4.1

Differences between Men and Women – Sex or Gender?

METHOD

Brainstorm, group work, discussion

PURPOSE

To distinguish sex-based differences from gender-based differences between men and women, and to consider how peacekeeping personnel need to understand the gender stereotypes so attitudes and stereotypes do not undermine equality and human rights

TIME

Short Option: 5 minutes

- Group work: 3 minutes
- Discussion: 2 minutes

Longer Option: 10-15 minutes

- Group work: 5-7 minutes
- Discussion: 5-7 minutes

INSTRUCTIONS

- Define “sex” and “gender”
- Give examples of gender stereotypes
- Discuss how gender results in inequalities
- Should treatment be the same or different?

RESOURCES

- Learning Activity instructions
- Responses to discussion questions

Note on use: The word “gender” does not translate easily. Sometimes it has been translated as “sex”. The purpose of the exercise is to distinguish biological reality (sex) from socialized reality (gender). Use language and examples that will help a group of learners absorb this distinction.

Preparation

- Review the learning activity. Strengthen your own understanding of “gender” as a key concept distinct from “sex”, as well as what is meant by “gender roles.”
- Prepare the first flipchart. Draw a line in the middle of the page to make two columns. Write “Sex” at the top of one column, and “Gender” at the top of the other.
- Prepare two more flip-charts. Write “Men/boys” at the top of one, and “Women/girls” on the other. Post them beside each other at the front of the room.
- Choose the questions you want to use to prompt brainstorming and guide discussion.

Instructions

1. Introduce the exercise by asking participants the question: What is the difference between “sex” and “gender”? Use the first flipchart you have prepared to note points.
2. Ask participants to take a minute or two to reflect on their own culture, and the place of women and men in it. Using the remaining flip-charts, participants must brainstorm the differences between women and girls, men and boys. Prompt brainstorming with questions. Example include:
 - a) What is one difference in how men/boys and women/girls are expected to behave, in your culture?
 - b) What work are women expected to do that men are not? What about the reverse?
 - c) What kinds of social restrictions are placed on males and females?
 - d) Did your grandparents behave in the same ways and do the same work as your parents? Do you follow the same patterns as your parents?
3. Work through the questions. Ask the first question, and note points. Work through the others. People do not need to agree with each other. Invite different perspectives from across the cultural differences represented in the room.
4. When the sheet is full, ask people to read it over. Ask:
 - a) Which of the differences noted are biological?
 - b) Which of the differences noted are social or cultural?
 Circle any biological ones, and underline gender-related ones.
5. Long option: Expand the exercise. Encourage more discussion. Ask participants to complete these sentences:
 - Women and girls should never ...
 - Men and boys should never ...
 - Girls and women should always ...
 - Boys and men should always ...

6. Wrap up with clarifications. See the Responses to the discussion questions below. Highlight the following:
 - a) Ideas about gender (in other words, what defines men as men and women as women) and gender roles (in other words, the activities that are socially acceptable for males and females) vary between cultures (even within parts of the same culture) and change over time.
 - b) In many cultures, women and girls tend to be in a lower position or “subordinate” to men and boys. This results in inequalities.
 - c) We are all products of social influence. Peacekeeping personnel need to recognize their own socialization and avoid projecting stereotypes and bias onto men and boys, women and girls from another culture.
 - d) Peacekeeping personnel must be careful not to reinforce discrimination of women and girls, and gender inequality.
 - e) One example of relevance to UN peacekeeping relates to the Disarmament, demobilization and reintegration (DDR) of ex-combatants. Early DDR programmes ignored the active role that women and girls played in conflict, because this role was associated with men and boys. Women and girls were excluded from DDR programmes. Their needs were not addressed in reintegration initiatives. This is an example of being “gender-blind”, the opposite of being “gender-sensitive”.
7. Use the summary of the exercise to introduce Lesson 2.4. During the lesson, link key messages back to points raised in this exercise.

2.4.1 Responses to Discussion Questions: Differences between Men and Women – Sex or Gender?

Questions

What is the difference between “sex” and “gender”?

Can you give of examples of gender stereotypes?

SEX

- Biological – mostly related to physical differences associated with reproduction
- Universal – the same for all human groups
Generally fixed – individuals can have sex changes or “gender reassignment”, but in most cases people live their lives as the sex they were born “male” and “female” are sex-based, biological categories

GENDER

- Social, cultural – specific to a particular society, culture and time (a social construct)
- Social characteristics used to define women and men, in a particular context
- Identifies what a given society considers appropriate for women and men
- Not fixed – changes over time, is challenged by individuals within a society
Diverse – vary in and between societies, influenced by social factors such as economic class, race, caste, ethnicity, sexual orientation and cultural factors such as religion, social norms “masculine” and “feminine” are gender-based, cultural categories

GENDER ROLES

- Activities women and men are expected to do in households and community
- Different cultures have different expectations for women and men
- Ideas about gender roles are formed during early years – childhood, adolescence
- Gender roles change at different stages of a person’s life – and they definitely change in response to violent conflict
- They are affected by changes in context, particularly social movements, and violent conflict
- Ideas about gender roles are influenced by family, school, peers, culture and religion, advertising and media.
- The reality of gender roles is also influenced by necessity – in times of violent conflict, girls and women may have to take on gender roles associated in peace time with boys and men

GENDER-BLIND, GENDER-UNAWARE

- Blind to gender or socialized differences between men and women – unaware or ignorant of them
- Some sources define this as a positive thing, i.e. being unisex or not discriminating on the basis of gender. These definitions confuse sex and gender. In international work, being gender-blind means failing to identify significant differences that have implication for action

GENDER-SENSITIVE

- Being aware of how different people think about gender, and that no “one right way” exists
- Basing actions and decisions on principles of equality and choices women and men make, not one's own ideas
- Avoiding stereotyped and outdated views of what is possible, appropriate for women and men

Examples of gender stereotypes – generalizations and assumptions

- Women do not take active roles in combat. (Formed Police Units contradict this.)
- Men enjoy public roles. (Some men prefer private to public life.)
- Girls are not good at mathematics or science. (Human ability for math varies.)
- Boys don't cry. (All humans cry.)
- Women are better parents than men. (Men can be equally loving and competent parents, and some women are poor parents.)

Learning Activity

2.4.2

Impact of Conflict on Women and Girls

METHOD

Brainstorm, group discussion

PURPOSE

To consider how violent conflict has terrible effects on all human beings, but a specifically different impact on women, men, boys and girls

TIME

Short option: 5 minutes

- Group work: 3 minutes
- Discussion: 2 minutes

Longer option: 15 minutes

- Group work: 5-7 minutes
- Discussion: 5-7 minutes

INSTRUCTIONS

- Consider the testimonies of civilians
- List examples of how women and girls, men and boys experience conflict differently
- Discuss the role of gender stereotypes

RESOURCES

- Learning Activity instructions
- Testimonies (1-5 from Learning Activity 2.3.1)
- Responses to discussion questions

Note on use: The following learning activities use the same testimonies: 2.3.1, 2.3.3, and 2.4.2. The learning activities analyse the real-life experiences of ordinary civilians in different ways. They build on Learning Activity 1.1.2 on Consequences of Violent Conflict by looking at specific examples of the impact of violent conflict. Learning Activity 2.4.2 looks at the different experiences of women and girls. Lesson 2.7 on Child Protection will further analyse the different experiences of girls and boys.

Preparation

- Review brainstorming results from related learning activities in Module 1 and Module 2. If participants noted different impacts on women, men, girls and boys, prepare to use those in your introduction.
- Read the Testimonies (1-5 from Learning Activity 2.3.1). Make enough copies for all participants.
- Read the Responses to the discussion question for the testimonies.
- Prepare flip-chart sheets or a board to record points from discussion. Prepare two flip-chart sheets, or a white board or black board, with two columns to record points. Write “Women/Girls” at the top of one flip-chart sheet or column; “Men/Boys” on the other. Transfer any specific points made about the impact of violent conflict on the two groups, from the previous exercises. Have extra sheets or space ready if needed.
- Decide on the groups. The timing for the activity is short. You may wish to distribute the testimonies between the groups. There are five testimonies.
- Prepare key points on how different groups are affected differently. Use content in Lesson 2.4 on Women, Peace and Security.

Instructions

1. Assign groups.
2. Introduce the exercise as you hand out copies of the testimonies. As part of continuing work on the consequences of violent conflict and human rights, this activity focuses on how girls and women experience conflict in ways different from boys and men. It brings life to the real challenges faced by ordinary individuals. Participants are encouraged to put themselves in the shoes of these individuals – this is a difficult request.
3. Short option: Ask participants to read the testimonies aloud in their groups. Encourage participants to draw on other learning and experience. Get participants to brainstorm some examples of how conflict may affect human rights, using the posted results from brainstorming on the effects of violent conflict from Learning Activity 1.1.2 on Consequences of Violent Conflict. They must answer the following questions:
 - a) How do women and girls, men and boys experience conflict differently?
 - b) What is the role of gender stereotypes?
4. Long option: Prompt more discussion with selected questions (see below). Note points as participants raise them. Use different colours of flip-chart pen to note points that relate to boys and girls, in both columns.
5. As you move to close, refer to points from brainstorming in previous exercises relating to consequences of violent conflict. Use these summary points to bridge to the main lesson:

- a) Violent conflict has terrible effects on all human beings
- b) Impact of conflict – disruption of normal life, the threat of injury or death, hunger, a need to flee for personal safety
- c) Difference between things that everyone experiences and things that may be specific to people of certain sex and age
- d) Peacekeeping personnel need to take into account these differences in order to be able to successfully protect civilians and carry out other mission tasks

Possible questions

- What kinds of things will women and girls have a harder time with in violent conflict?
- What kinds of things will men and boys have a harder time with?
- What increased risks do women/girls and men/boys face?
- How might the familiar roles of women, girls, men and boys change?
- What kinds of things might women, girls, men and boys be able to do that they were not able to do before?
- What kinds of things might they not be able to do that they did in peace time?
- What changes might influence the situation of men and women after the conflict?

Possible answers

- Harder for women to get food, fuel and water in safety – traditional gender roles for which women continue to be mainly responsible.
- Harder for men to support their families, provide food.
- Men may take up arms.
- Women may have more people to care for, people with serious injuries or conditions. They will probably have reduced access to resources for care as well as survival.
- Boys may be forced to take up arms, become child soldiers. Drugs and alcohol may become part of their daily routines, further desensitizing them and compounding future challenges of reintegrating child soldiers into community life.
- Girls and women may be abducted as sexual slaves and bush wives.
- Pregnant women and girls face increased risk of childbirth complications.
- Women and girls may have to prostitute themselves for survival.
- Women and girls may be victims of conflict-related sexual violence, if rape is used as a weapon of war.
- Boys and men may also be victims of conflict-related sexual violence.
- Psychosocial effects of violent conflict may increase domestic violence, men more violent with all family members, women more violent to children.

2.4.2 Responses to Discussion Question: Impact of Conflict on Women and Girls

Question

How do women and girls, men and boys experience conflict differently?

What is the role of gender stereotypes?

The facts:

Testimony 1

- Abduction; sexual violence; vulnerability as a child
- Unclear whether perpetrators are State army or armed rebel group
- Girls targeted for sexual violence

Testimony 2

- Threat to life; threat to livelihood; vulnerability as a child
- Unclear whether perpetrators are State army or armed rebel group
- Boys (and men) work with the cattle

Testimony 3

- Threat to life; vulnerability as a child
- Unclear whether perpetrators are State army or armed rebel group
- Baby boy killed – potential threat as a future fighter

Testimony 4

- Abduction; recruitment into armed group; threat to life; vulnerability as a child
- Abuse by armed rebel group
- Boy recruited into armed group

Testimony 5

- Sexual violence
- Abuse by armed rebel group
- Women target for sexual violence

2.4.2 Testimonies: Impact of Conflict on Women and Girls

Testimony 1

“Sometimes, fighters come to the school to find girl students.

We [teachers] can't refuse. They [the girl students] go with [the fighters].

Often, students arrive late to school, because they get caught en route....

Soldiers don't come into the classroom, but when a fighter knocks on the door, you have to answer.

This happened in May. I said, 'Hello.' He asked for a girl. I can't refuse. So I called the girl, the one that he named, and she went with him. He didn't have a gun, but his escorts were behind him, and they had guns, three of them.

[The fighters] know [the students] names from encountering them on the road. It would happen three to four times a month [at my school]. It would be lots of girls, maybe 10 a month or so. I can't really say.

We can't say anything; if we do, we could be killed.”

Testimony 2

"We fled with cattle to the river [but] we had to leave the cows behind because they were shooting right up to us.

We were in the river for three days because you can't come out because of the shooting.

There was random shooting into the reeds to get [us] hiding people. We ate water lily and roots [in the river]."

Testimony 3

"I was with my neighbor when they asked her whether her baby was a boy or a girl.

When she said 'boy' they told her that they were going to kill the baby because 'when he grows up he will fight with us so I have to kill him before that happens.'

They shot the boy in front of the mother."

Testimony 4

"They took us by force.

(Then) they took us in a boat to Diteng. We got training in Diteng, how to use weapons, how to stand to attention, we were also in parades.

I was (then) taken to Bakang, there was fighting there. There was one battle, it was two days long, I was shooting. There were many children fighting there.

... Yes we saw Olony, he used to come to us in Diteng. He said we need to be strong."

Learning Activity

2.4.3

Film: Women in Peacekeeping

METHOD

Film, discussion

PURPOSE

To consider women and girls as equal to men and boys as active partners of peace, rather than the stereotype where they are seen as subordinate and passive victims of conflict

TIME

15 minutes

- Film: 8:03 minutes
- Discussion: 5-7 minutes

INSTRUCTIONS

- How are women key partners of peace?
- Using the film, explain “inclusiveness”, “non-discrimination” and “gender balance”

<https://youtu.be/vAuFQj9xBYc>

RESOURCES

- Learning Activity instructions
- Photos

Note on Use: Films are excellent visual supports. They help prepare peacekeepers, showing them what to expect. Other related short films are also available on YouTube.

Preparation

- Source: YouTube site: <https://youtu.be/vAuFQj9xBYc>
- Access the film and watch it. Decide what questions you want to ask and total time available for this learning activity.
- Check connectivity and the technology needed to show the film. Make sure you have what you need before the session. Check seating, sightlines and sound.

Instructions

1. Introduce the film.
2. Show the film.
3. Ask general questions about the film.
 - a) How are women key partners of peace?
 - b) What does “inclusiveness” mean?
 - c) What does “non-discrimination” mean?
 - d) What does “gender balance” mean?If time allows, you may ask specific questions about the film based on preparation.

Variation

- Use photos in addition or as an alternative as prompts for discussion.
- Research into the women as key partners of peace – especially Liberian case of Leahm Gbowee and the emergence of the first female President in Africa. The Women of Liberia Mass Action for Peace was a peace movement started by women in Liberia to end the Second Liberian Civil War – and Nobel Peace prize winner Leahm Gbowee as a social worker was one of the organisers. You may wish to use the photos provided as examples. Carry out research of the specific cases reflected in the photos.

Gender Mainstreaming

METHOD

Brainstorm, Discussion

PURPOSE

To apply understanding of gender mainstreaming to mission tasks

TIME

10 minutes

- Brainstorming: 5-7 minutes
- Discussion: 3 minutes

INSTRUCTIONS

- Consider the scenarios
- You must eliminate the discrimination and inequality experienced by women and girls
- How would you integrate their concerns and experiences in the work carried out?

RESOURCES

- Learning Activity instructions
- Responses to discussion questions
- Scenarios
- Scenarios with photos (2, 4, 10, 11 from Learning Activity 1.1.2)

Learning Activity 2.4.4

Scenario 1

You are deployed to a UN peacekeeping mission. You work with ex-combatants. How would you integrate the concerns and experiences of women and girls?

UN Core Pre-Deployment Training Materials 2016

Preparation

- Consider whether you will include photos. Select the photos. Decide whether you will project the photos on slides, or prepare them as handouts. Photos have been pre-selected from Learning Activity 1.1.2 (photos numbered 2, 4, 10, and 11).
- Read the Responses to the discussion question for the scenario.
- Write the question on a flip-chart sheet or board: How can the concerns and experiences of women and girls be integrated into peacekeeping work?
- Prepare key points on the importance of “gender equality” and “gender mainstreaming”. Use the content from Lesson 2.4.
- Decide on the groups. The timing for the activity is short. You may wish to distribute the scenarios between the groups, with one scenario for each group. There are four scenarios. Divide people into four teams.
- Consider assigning preparation on the briefing as homework. Encourage people to do on-line research and draw on their own experience.

Instructions

1. Introduce the activity. The purpose of the activity is for participants to apply a gender perspective to peacekeeping work. For each scenario, participants must think of practical ways to eliminate the discrimination and inequality experienced by women and girls.
2. Distribute the photos and scenario.
3. Ask participants to read the scenarios. Group work involves brainstorming how to make sure the experiences and concerns of women and girls are considered in each situation – this is gender mainstreaming. Refer them to the posted question on the flip-chart sheet. Get participants to discuss in small groups.
4. Ask participants to report back after the allocated time. Get several responses from the group before expanding with provided explanations, below.
5. When the group has finished discussing the scenario, reflect on the discussion and experience. Expand with any more points.
6. Highlight:
 - a) Women and girls have different experiences, concerns and needs in conflict situations
 - b) Women and girls are not just victims, but actors in conflict – both positive and negative actors (for example, as peacemakers and combatants)
 - c) The need to be aware of gender stereotypes – in the country, and even your own
 - d) Importance of integrating or mainstreaming a gender perspective (i.e. gender mainstreaming) to help us to be aware of and address the different concerns and experiences of women and girls
7. Close the exercise. Key message: To eliminate discrimination and gender inequality against women and girls, peacekeeping personnel must mainstream a gender perspective. This helps them to understand the impact of any planned action for women and girls, men and boys

2.4.4 Responses to Discussion Question: Gender Mainstreaming

You are deployed to a UN peacekeeping mission. You must eliminate the discrimination and inequality experienced by women and girls.

How would you integrate the concerns and experiences of women and girls in your work?

Scenario 1: Reintegration of combatants

Early UN work on DDR focused on male ex-combatants. Experience showed women were neglected during and after conflict. For example, demobilization incentive programmes ignored the needs of female combatants. Demobilization packages included only male clothing, or tools not used by women.

Combatants may have abducted women and girls as sex slaves – also known as “bush wives”. After conflict, partners rejected these women and girls. When families reject them, women and children may be destitute. They need help to find jobs and feed their children.

DDR programmes designed with only male combatants in mind may not consider them. Women often know of stockpiles of weapons and may want to rid their communities of arms.

Responses

- DDR work now stresses the importance of meeting the needs of all. Disarmament can gain by focusing on women as well as men.
- Consider women's needs in the design of demobilization packages and services, as well as men's, in proportion to the numbers of women and girls in affected groups
- Consider the needs of female ex-combatants as well as those of males. Consider the needs of associates of male ex-combatants (wives and dependents).
- Include and provide for dependents of combatants and other camp followers, and women and girls associated with male ex-combatants.
- Consult with women separately when questioning community members about arms caches and the status of developments for peace
- Inform themselves about initiatives for women and girls that are part of implementing mission mandate. Provide ex-combatants with information and links to psycho-social counselling and the support services available

Scenario 2: Refugees and IDPs

Conflict within the country has resulted in major social and economic disorder. In recent years, violent conflict has deliberately targeted civilians, especially women and children. Many flee their home communities in search of safety away from conflict zones.

Most refugees and IDPs are women and children. They often arrive at reception centres traumatized by attacks before and during fight. The attack may vary according to whether victims are boys, men, girls or women. Each group has different needs for support and rehabilitation.

Women and girls in camps for refugees and displaced people may suffer further abuse. Camp residents or officials may sexually abuse them, or demand sex in exchange for rations and other benefits. Men in camps may suffer from trauma and frustration. Unable to fulfil their traditional roles as household heads and family protectors, and with an unclear future, they can become depressed or violent with others, including women and children.

Responses

- Be aware of different numbers of women, men, girls and boys in refugee or IDP populations. Consider family structures and relationships.
- Assess different needs and threats that women and children face as IDPs or refugees. Distinguish between threats to women and men, girls and boys.
- Include information on different numbers of women and children and their needs in all reports. Disaggregate data by age as well as by sex.
- Ensure women and men have equal levels of safety and security. They may need different programmes or support.

Scenario 3: Rule of law

Before the conflict, the society regulated unacceptable conduct through formal systems of law and order, and informal ones of tradition and culture. As a result of conflict, these cultural, traditional and legal restraints disappeared. Women and children especially lost special protection.

For example, poverty, desperation and the weakness of the rule of law have allowed violent crime to increase dramatically, especially as small arms and weapons are available. Women and children are vulnerable to violent crime and often fall prey to organized crime as they face increasing pressures to earn a living. Some beg and others sell sex. Trafficking of women and children is also a feature of a post-conflict, criminal economy. Domestic violence by males in the home against women and children increases in post-conflict societies.

Rule of law must be restored in communities. Rule of law-related activities are also carried out in refugee and IDP camps.

Responses

- Know the different numbers of women and men in the community of different age groups.
- Talk to women and women's groups about threats to safety.
- Consult with the marginalized as well as influential people. Reach out.
- Make sure that programmes to restore law and order address the concerns of women and men equally.
- Encourage equal representation of women and men in local security forces (for example, military and police) or community organizations involved in community safety.
- Under no circumstances are peacekeeping personnel to take advantage of this unfortunate reality. The UN prohibits exploitation and abuse of women and children for all peacekeeping personnel.

Scenario 4: Economic opportunities

Conflict has destroyed and disrupted government and social services, such as education and health. It has caused shortages in goods and services. Prices of essential commodities may rise, or not be available at all. An illegal black market has grown. Collapse of social services and infrastructure affects women acutely because they have primary responsibility for children and households.

The physical infrastructure of roads, bridges, transport, power and communication lines is also often badly damaged as a result of violent conflict. Women have lost access to reproductive health care. Social confusion disrupts children's schooling.

The period immediately after conflict is still violent, when violence can take many new forms. Men and women face different challenges because normal services and infrastructure have collapsed.

Men and women often lose their peacetime jobs and pensions. Landmines and other explosive hazards may be in land they used to work and crops destroyed. Women are especially vulnerable in this environment. Their access to jobs and livelihoods were limited before the conflict. They are more limited in the post-conflict setting. Women may now head households, as sole providers for extended families of children and elderly relatives.

Responses

- Investigate challenges women face accessing social services.
- Investigate why women may not have equal access to such economic opportunities. Include information on discriminatory barriers and bias in reports.
- Women and men have different needs and reactions to the challenges. Peacekeeping personnel need to be aware of such differences. These differences need to be a) factored into plans and activities and b) reported on in routine reporting duties.
- Work with mission partners to find creative short-term or long-term solutions. For example, advertising mission vacancies in media women are more likely to access. Seek out and work with companies that have fair and equal employment practices as a basic part of procurement.
- Make sure women and men have equal access to land ownership and economic opportunities in society, as well as jobs and contracts in the mission. This includes mission support staff issuing contracts or recruiting people to local companies.

2.4.4 Scenarios: Gender Mainstreaming

You are deployed to a UN peacekeeping mission.

You must eliminate the discrimination and inequality experienced by women and girls.

How would you integrate the concerns and experiences of women and girls in your work?

Scenario 1: Reintegration of combatants

Early UN work on DDR focused on male ex-combatants. Experience showed women were neglected during and after conflict. For example, demobilization incentive programmes ignored the needs of female combatants. Demobilization packages included only male clothing, or tools not used by women.

Combatants may have abducted women and girls as sex slaves – also known as “bush wives”. After conflict, partners rejected these women and girls. When families reject them, women and children may be destitute. They need help to find jobs and feed their children.

DDR programmes designed with only male combatants in mind may not consider them. Women often know of stockpiles of weapons and may want to rid their communities of arms.

2.4.4 Scenarios: Gender Mainstreaming

You are deployed to a UN peacekeeping mission.

You must eliminate the discrimination and inequality experienced by women and girls.

How would you integrate the concerns and experiences of women and girls in your work?

Scenario 2: Refugees and IDPs

Conflict within the country has resulted in major social and economic disorder. In recent years, violent conflict has deliberately targeted civilians, especially women and children. Many flee their home communities in search of safety away from conflict zones.

Most refugees and IDPs are women and children. They often arrive at reception centres traumatized by attacks before and during fight. The attack may vary according to whether victims are boys, men, girls or women. Each group has different needs for support and rehabilitation.

Women and girls in camps for refugees and displaced people may suffer further abuse. Camp residents or officials may sexually abuse them, or demand sex in exchange for rations and other benefits. Men in camps may suffer from trauma and frustration. Unable to fulfil their traditional roles as household heads and family protectors, and with an unclear future, they can become depressed or violent with others, including women and children.

2.4.4 Scenarios: Gender Mainstreaming

You are deployed to a UN peacekeeping mission.

You must eliminate the discrimination and inequality experienced by women and girls.

How would you integrate the concerns and experiences of women and girls in your work?

Scenario 3: Rule of law

Before the conflict, the society regulated unacceptable conduct through formal systems of law and order, and informal ones of tradition and culture. As a result of conflict, these cultural, traditional and legal restraints disappeared. Women and children especially lost special protection.

For example, poverty, desperation and the weakness of the rule of law have allowed violent crime to increase dramatically, especially as small arms and weapons are available. Women and children are vulnerable to violent crime and often fall prey to organized crime as they face increasing pressures to earn a living. Some beg and others sell sex. Learning Activity2.4.5

Shaping Gender RolesMETHOD

Brainstorm in table groups, share in full group

PURPOSE

To brainstorm dominant influences on “gender” (in other words, socialized ideas about who women and men are and what they do in a particular culture), to illustrate how many different influences reinforce a set of “gender” norms

TIME

15 minutes

- Introduce the activity: 2 minutes
- Table groups: 5 minutes
- Full group: 7 minutes
- Close: 1 minute

INSTRUCTIONS

- Recall the definition of “gender”
- Consider the different influences in life
- How do they influence “gender”?

RESOURCES

- Learning Activity instructions
- Responses to discussion questions

Note on use: While “gender” is a more flexible concept than “sex”, and changes between cultures and time – ideas about “gender” can also be remarkably fixed and resistant to change. Many influences reinforce certain gender roles in a culture. This exercise is helpful to explain those influences and why changing our ideas about women and men can be so challenging.

Learning Activity 2.4.5 on Shaping Gender Roles and Learning Activity 2.4.6 on Gender and Power Structures are similar. They both focus on examples in society which influence “gender”. Learning Activity 2.4.5 focuses on influences in life such as family, school, peers, religion, media (including advertising), and culture. Learning Activity 2.4.6 has a more detailed focus on power structures, which includes the constitution, national laws, parliament and governance structures, schools, workplaces, public services, the family (nuclear or extended), community and social traditions, and marriage. If you decide to deliver both learning activities, consider merging them.

Preparation

- Prepare flip chart sheets or organize a whiteboard or blackboard to take notes. Write the following, one per sheet or in an area of the board – they represent the different examples of influences in life:
- Family
 - School
 - Peers
 - Religion
 - Media including advertising
 - Culture
- Review the Responses to the discussion (see below). Prepare some key questions to prompt brainstorming for each category.
- Review Lesson 2.4, particularly the definitions of “gender” and “sex.”

Instructions

1. Introduce the exercise, noting that it uses concepts from Lesson 2.4. This exercise will deepen the participants' understanding of “gender”.
2. Ask participants to reflect on their own lives. Family through school, peers, the wider community, dominant culture, religion, and many other different influences shape gender norms.
3. Ask participants to consider the different examples of influences in life, and answer the following question: How do they influence “gender”?
4. Work through each example using the flip-charts or board. Ask for an example of influences on gender from “family”. Once you have several examples, move to the next category, “school”. The goal is to have a range of examples that illustrate how pervasive socialization on gender is, not to create a complete list.
5. Ask participants if they can think of examples where boys and girls, or men and women do not follow conventional gender norms. Invite them to share examples.
6. Summarise and close the exercise. Reinforce these key messages:
 - a) Gender is ever-changing, and changes in context, including violent conflict.
 - b) Ideas about gender (in other words, what defines men as men and women as women) and gender roles (in other words, the activities that are socially

- acceptable for males and females) vary between cultures (even within parts of the same culture) and change over time.
- c) In many cultures, women and girls tend to be in a lower position or “subordinate” to men and boys. This results in inequalities.
 - d) We are all products of social influence. Peacekeeping personnel need to recognize their own socialization and avoid projecting stereotypes and bias onto men and boys, women and girls from another culture.
 - e) Peacekeeping personnel must be careful not to reinforce discrimination of women and girls, and gender inequality.

2.4.5 Responses to Discussion Question: Shaping Gender Roles

Question

Consider the different influences in life. How do they influence “gender”?

GENDER ROLES

- Activities women and men are expected to do in households and community
- Different cultures have different expectations for women and men
- Ideas about gender roles are formed during early years – childhood, adolescence
- Gender roles change at different stages of a person's life – and they definitely change in response to violent conflict
- They are affected by changes in context, particularly social movements, and violent conflict
- Ideas about gender roles are influenced by family, school, peers, culture and religion, advertising and media.
- The reality of gender roles is also influenced by necessity – in times of violent conflict, girls and women may have to take on gender roles associated in peace time with boys and men

Family influences on gender

- How women and men treat each other
- Attitudes of parents towards boys and girls
- Assignment of domestic chores in the household
- Who works outside the home and at what
- Access to and control over household resources – money, time, power
- Household division of labour for both productive (paid) and reproductive (unpaid) work

School influences on gender

- Sex of teachers, influential role models on children
- Accessibility of school to girls and boys
- Different expectations for boys and girls, for recreational activities and studies
- Whether girls and boys are taught together or separately
- Degree of gender-sensitivity evident in school arrangements and curricula

Peer influences on gender

- Whether games available to girls and boys promote equality or stereotypes
- Degree of rigidity or flexibility for choices of colour, clothing, activities
- Separate or shared games, equality of opportunity for self-directed recreation
- Popular role models for peers, their projection of gender norms
- Freedom of social interaction with male and female peers available to boys and girls

Religion

- Religious figures – their sex and their attitudes
- Religious systems, stereotypes perpetuated in religious practices
- Extent to which religion prescribes gender norms for males and females

Culture

- Popular images and projection of narrower expectations for girls than boys, women than men
- Valuing of masculine traits more than feminine traits (strength more than emotion)
- Setting male traits as the cultural “norm”, so women are by definition “other”
- Extent to which discriminatory language and practices are embedded in cultural practice

Learning Activity2.4.6*Gender and Power Structures – Questions for Peacekeeping Personnel*METHOD

Discussion, small and large group

PURPOSE

To deepen understanding of how power structures in communities of the host country influence gender norms, to ensure peacekeeping personnel promote gender equality

TIME

25 minutes

- Introduction: 5 minutes
- Small groups: 10 minutes
- Full group: 10 minutes including 1 minute to close

INSTRUCTIONS

- Think about the different power structures in your own country
- How do they reflect “gender”?
- How do they influence “gender”?
- What are the questions you need to ask about power structures in the host country to better understand “gender”?

RESOURCES

- Learning Activity instructions
- Responses to discussion questions

Note on use: Learning Activity 2.4.5 on Shaping Gender Roles and Learning Activity 2.4.6 on Gender and Power Structures are similar. They both focus on examples in society which influence “gender”. Learning Activity 2.4.5 focuses on influences in life such as family, school, peers, religion, media (including advertising), and culture. Learning Activity 2.4.6 has a more detailed focus on power structures, which include the constitution, national laws, parliament and governance structures, schools, workplaces, public services, the family (nuclear or extended), community and social traditions, and marriage. If you decide to deliver both learning activities, consider merging them.

Preparation

- Prepare a flip-chart or a presentation slide listing different examples of main power structures, as well as social and legal frameworks:
 - The constitution
 - National laws
 - Parliament and governance structures
 - Schools
 - Workplaces
 - Public services
 - Family – nuclear or extended
 - Community and social traditions
 - Marriage
- Prepare some key questions to prompt discussion on how the examples reflect and influence gender norms. See examples below.
- Review the Responses to the discussion question (see below).
- Finalize your preparation of the exercise by tailoring it to the particular group of learners. Consider how in-depth the discussions need to be, and identify key points to cover. Depending on the level of understanding, decide whether to deliver the learning activity using small groups, or to one large group. Delivering the activity to one large group will allow you to monitor complex discussions.
- Ensure key points on the importance of “gender equality” and “gender mainstreaming” are included. Use content from Lesson 2.4.
- Decide on groups.

Instructions

1. Introduce the activity by explaining the following:
 - a) Each society has social and legal frameworks through which it manages social relations, including relationships of power.
 - b) Gender may be said to be “invisible” in these social institutions and structures. However, it also may be said that gender is not invisible. It is there, but people are not looking.
 - c) Looking helps make it visible. Peacekeeping personnel need to “look”, to ask questions about power structures and social relations so they can better understand the context of their work.
 - d) “Mainstreaming a gender perspective” helps – this is also called “gender mainstreaming”.
2. Go through the power structures listed, as examples. Invite questions from participants who need clarification.

3. Ask participants to reflect on these power structures in their own country. Participants must work in groups and answer general questions about the power structures:
 - a) How do they reflect “gender”?
 - b) How do they influence “gender”?
4. Ask participants to then consider the peacekeeping context, and what they have learned so far. Task the small groups to brainstorm answers to the question: What are the questions you need to ask about power structures in the host country to better understand “gender”? Identifying specific questions to ask will help deepen understanding of power structures in communities of the host country, and ensure peacekeeping personnel promote gender equality.
5. Bring the small groups together for the large group discussion. Invite key points from participants from the tasks set. Use the flip-chart to capture the examples of questions for peacekeeping personnel to ask about power structures.
6. Summarise the key points discussed, and close the activity. Highlight the following:
 - a) Gender: what defines men as men and women as women
 - b) Gender roles: the activities that are socially acceptable for males and females
 - c) In many cultures, women and girls tend to be in a lower position or “subordinate” to men and boys. This results in inequalities.
 - d) Gender may be said to be “invisible” in these social institutions and structures. However, it is there, but people are not looking.
 - e) Peacekeeping personnel must be careful not to reinforce discrimination of women and girls, and gender inequality.
 - f) Peacekeeping personnel need to “look”, to ask questions about power structures and social relations so they can better understand the context of their work.
 - g) Promotion of women's equality and women's human rights is expected of all UN peacekeeping personnel.

2.4.6 Responses to Discussion Question: Gender and Power Structures

Question

What are the questions you need to ask about power structures in the host country to better understand “gender”?

Examples of questions for peacekeeping personnel to ask about power structures

- How many women are in the current parliament, of total seats?
- If there is a senate, what is the ratio of men to women in the senate?
- Does a quota system protect a number of seats for women?
- How many female candidates are standing for office in upcoming elections?
- Are women represented in local government councils?
- Are girls and women organized in civil society or non-governmental organizations that represent their specific interests and needs?
- Do women have more power than men in any social or community institution?
- What does the constitution say about rights and obligations of women and men?
- How do legal frameworks address family law, inheritance law?
- What are the most important cultural practices and traditions in a community? What events are celebrated?
- What are women's and men's contributions to and roles in those practices?
- What is a typical family profile, and family size?
- Who has most power through social structures and institutions, and who has less?
- What do the answers to these questions say about how power is distributed through social institutions?

Learning Activity

2.4.7

Equal Treatment – Unequal Results

METHOD

Use of a fable (story), discussion

PURPOSE

To show that equal treatment can bring unequal results – sometimes to achieve equality, different treatment may be needed

TIME

15 minutes

INSTRUCTIONS

- Consider the fable (story)
- Does equal treatment lead to equality?
- What lessons can you learn for your peacekeeping work?

RESOURCES

- Learning Activity instructions
- Responses to Discussion Questions
- Fable (story)
- Images with story

Preparation

- Read the fable. One version of the moral from the original fable is that “one bad turn deserves another”. Another is that “one should not play tricks unless s/he can stand the same treatment”. The fable is being adapted for a different purpose in this usage.
- Review Responses to the discussion question (see below).
- Prepare the materials that will be used. Print copies of the fable if needed. See the images of the fox and crane for the fable. Decide whether you will include the images for the fable in the handouts, or project as presentation slides for the lesson.
- Prepare reading the fable with the group. If you decide to project the images for the fable as presentation slides for the lesson, practice projecting the relevant image for the related part of the story.

Instructions

1. Begin the activity by reading the fable of the fox and the crane.
2. Ask participants if they draw any conclusions from the fable. Share the following conclusion: What works to meet the basic needs for one creature or person may not work at all for another.
3. Explain the following:
 - a) Differences between what women/girls and men/boys need may not be as visible as in the fable of the fox and the crane
 - b) Differences between what men and women need do exist
4. Ask participants what lessons they might draw from this fable in relation to how they approach peacekeeping work. Prompt discussion with the following questions:
 - a) Does equal treatment lead to equality?
 - b) How does this relate to “gender”?
 - c) Why is it important to consider the different needs of women/girls and men/boys?
 - d) How will this affect your peacekeeping work?
5. Wrap up with examples of lessons applicable to peacekeeping work.

2.4.7 Responses to Discussion Question: Equal Treatment – Unequal Results

Question

What lessons can you learn for your peacekeeping work?

Examples of lessons applicable to peacekeeping work

- Keep in mind that your decisions and actions can lead to unequal results in how women/girls and men/boys are positively affected.
- Take the real and different needs of everyone (women/girls and men/boys) into account when planning and implementing decisions and actions.
- Try not to make assumptions about what people need – consult with them.
- Make sure that everyone (women/girls and men/boys) participates in consultations, decision-making and the implementation of actions.
- Do not assume that all individuals in one group (either as women/girls or men/boys) have the same needs – take into consideration age as well as sex.
- Do not let one person speak for another – listen to individuals in all sub-groups.
- It may be challenging, but it is important to identify where decisions and actions can lead to discrimination and gender inequality – this includes identifying barriers to opportunities for women and girls.
- You must adjust decisions and plans to promote greater equality in how results positively affect women and girls, men and boys.
- Do not mistake “gender blindness” for “gender sensitivity”.

GENDER-BLIND, GENDER-UNAWARE

- Blind to gender or socialized differences between men and women – unaware or ignorant of them
- Some sources define this as a positive thing, i.e. being unisex or not discriminating on the basis of gender. These definitions confuse sex and gender. In international work, being gender-blind means failing to identify significant differences that have implication for action.

GENDER-SENSITIVE

- Being aware of how different people think about gender, and that no “one right way” exists
- Basing actions and decisions on principles of equality and choices women and men make, not one’s own ideas
- Avoiding stereotyped and outdated views of what is possible, appropriate for women and men

Evaluation

Notes on Use: Types of learning evaluation questions are:

- 1) Narrative
- 2) Fill in the blank/sentence completion
- 3) True-False

Combine in different ways for pre-assessment and post-assessment. Each evaluation type covers different content. No sub-set covers all learning outcomes. Make sure you include learning evaluation questions for each learning outcome when you combine them.

Three main uses of evaluation questions are: a) informally ask the whole group, b) semi-formally assign to small groups or c) formally give to individuals for written responses.

Evaluation Questions for Lesson 2.4
Questions	Answers
Narrative
Note: Frame narrative evaluations as questions, requests or directions
1. Explain the differences between sex and gender of a person.	Sex <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ▪ refers to biology, biological differences between men and women ▪ set at birth, generally not changeable ▪ universal, across societies and cultures Gender <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ▪ refers to patterns shaped by a society – social characteristics ▪ not fixed – changes within and between cultures and over time ▪ also refers to what a society considers proper and fitting for men and women – behaviour, expectations, actions, roles ▪ social meaning and value given to being a woman or a man ▪ results in different roles, responsibilities, opportunities, entitlements, needs and constraints for women, men, girls and boys
2. Many influences shape gender roles and relations in a society. Name at least five.	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ▪ social class ▪ economic status ▪ political context

	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ▪ culture ▪ race ▪ age ▪ ethnicity ▪ religion ▪ people's own desires and aspirations
3. What is the root of discrimination against women and gender inequality?	Stereotypes about gender – social roles, what is acceptable for women and men
4. What does gender equality mean?	No discrimination because of sex or gender <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ▪ equal rights ▪ equal responsibilities ▪ equal opportunities ▪ equal benefits ▪ equal status in public and private ▪ equal value in social, economic, political, religious and cultural life ▪ equal consideration and weight to interests, needs, priorities and views of women and men
5. What prevents women and girls from enjoying their full and equal rights?	Discriminatory laws, policies and practices Attitudes and stereotypes  Key point is these can change, are not fixed.
6. What is gender mainstreaming?	Mainstreaming or integrating a gender perspective into all plans and actions. This means integrating concerns and experiences of women and men into all work to ensure: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ▪ women and men benefit equally ▪ inequality is not perpetuated A gender perspective always considers the impact of gender on people's opportunities, social roles and relationships. It assesses implications for women and men of every option and planned action. The UN expects both men and women to mainstream gender considerations.
7. What is gender analysis?	Gender analysis is a first step in gender mainstreaming. The purpose is to gain understanding of social position and relationships of men and women. Gender analysis separately considers: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ▪ access to resources ▪ activities: division of labour in productive, reproductive and community work

	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ▪ constraints each face in areas of work and fields of expertise Gender analysis always uses data broken down or disaggregated by sex and age. Peacekeeping reports need to do the same.
8. What is gender balance?	Equal numbers of men and women Equal representation of women and men <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ▪ at all levels of employment ▪ in all kinds of work – productive, reproductive and community The UN General Assembly has set the goal of achieving a 50-50 representation of women and men in all professional posts, especially decision-making and senior positions. Peacekeepers with experience may note the goal is not yet achieved. True. All need to increase efforts.
9. What does empowerment of women mean?	Women gaining power and control over their own lives, not being subordinate <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ▪ confident and aware of their rights ▪ able to claim and defend their rights What is needed for empowerment depends on the society. The process may involve <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ▪ awareness-raising ▪ building self-confidence ▪ support in expanding choices, increasing access to and control over resources ▪ collective action to transform parts of society that maintain inequality and discrimination
10. In what ways do men, women, girls and boys have the same experience of violent conflict?	All civilians face risks of: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ▪ death ▪ forcible displacement ▪ injury by landmines, other weapons ▪ loss of livelihoods ▪ lasting trauma
11. Give examples of important differences in experiences of men and boys, women and girls during and after conflict.	During the Conflict <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ▪ Women must work harder to get food, fuel and water. They may be at risk doing these daily tasks. ▪ Men find it harder to support their

	families. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ▪ Men may take up arms. ▪ Women may have more people to take care of, including injured people. ▪ Combatants may abduct and rape women and girls, use them as sexual slaves and bush wives. ▪ Combatants may forcefully conscript boys into combat, use them as sexual slaves. After the Conflict <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ▪ Men may be unable to work, provide for others. ▪ Women struggle with breaks in food and water supplies. ▪ Men may become disillusioned, frustrated, and resort to violence. So may women. ▪ Family and community may reject abducted women and girls. Finding partners may be difficult, especially if children resulted from rape. ▪ Women may resort to prostitution to survive. ▪ Post-conflict programs for re-entry to society may target only male combatants, ignoring women and girls.
12. What influences differences in how males and females experience violent conflict?
